HOW ARE YOU?

B. Reading

- 1 “Hello.” “How are you?” “Good morning.” “Have you eaten yet?” “Where are you going?” These are greetings which people use in different languages when they meet each other. But what is a greeting?
- 2 A greeting is a way of being friendly to someone. It is a way of being polite. It is also a way of starting a conversation. In many languages a question is used as a greeting: “Where are you going?” “How’s everything with you?” But questions like these are not real questions. They do not require a full answer or even a true one. In English, for example, the commonest greeting is a question about a person’s health: “How are you?” But we do not expect people to tell us about their health.
- 3 We do not expect them to talk about their headache or their backache, if they have one. People reply to these questions with a fixed expression such as “I’m fine, thanks.” or “I’m very well, thanks.” In the same way, in countries where people greet each other with “Where are you going?”, a simple reply such as “Just walking around.” is sufficient. It is not necessary to describe where you are actually going.

- 4 In most languages, a greeting is usually followed by “small talk.” Small talk means the little things we talk about at the start of a conversation. In English speaking countries, people often make small talk about the weather: “Nice day, isn’t it?” “Terrible weather, isn’t it?” But there is something special about small talk. It must be about something which both people have the same opinion about. The purpose of small talk is to let both people agree on something. This makes meeting people easier and more comfortable. People usually agree about the weather, so it is a safe topic for small talk. But people often disagree about religion or politics, so these are not suitable topics for small talk in English. The topics for small talk also depend on where the conversation is taking place. At football matches, people make small talk about the game they are watching: “Great game, isn’t it?” At bus stops, people may comment about the transport system: “The buses are very slow these days, aren’t they?”
- 5 Greetings and small talk are an important part of conversation in any language. The way people greet each other and the things they talk about, however, may be different from one language to another. This shows that there is much more to learn when we learn a language than just the vocabulary and the grammar of the language. We also have to learn the social behavior of the people who speak it.

D. Speak Out

Structure: Conditional Sentences (Type 2)

Speaking 1

Listen and repeat.

If Ali knew you live here, he would come to see you.

If the car was cheaper, we could buy it.

If I were a rich man, I would buy a house for you.

If I had a two-rial coin, I could telephone them.

If he didn't eat too much, he wouldn't be so fat.

If they arrived this afternoon, we might see them again.

Speaking 2: Substitution Drills

Substitute the words in the pattern sentences.

A) If they were here, I would show them the pictures.

1. borrow their car
2. cook dinner for them
3. tell them the truth
4. ask them these questions
5. buy more fruits
6. stay here

B) They'd come to see you if they knew your address.

1. lived near here
2. had a car
3. weren't in a hurry
4. saw your note
5. received your letter
6. weren't so busy

Speaking 3

Make questions with these words. Then answer them.

Example:

What / you do / you have a lot of money.
What would you do if you had a lot of money?
If I had a lot of money, I would help poor people.

1. What / you do / you have a big garden.
2. Where / you work / you are a professor.
3. What / you can buy / you have only ten tomans.
4. What / you can eat / you don't have any teeth.
5. What / you do / you aren't a student.
6. How / you write / you don't have fingers.

5. If I were an English teacher, I ----- .

Writing 2

Write five sentences about yourself and the people you know. Begin your sentences with "if" like the ones in this lesson.

To the Teacher

Structure: Conditional Sentences (Type 2)

Compare:

- A. If you come, we will study.
(simple present) (future)
- B. If you came, we would study.
(simple past) (past future)

Notes:

1. Sentence A talks about something which will probably happen and considers its consequences for the future. Whereas sentence B talks about an imaginary situation and considers its imaginary consequences at present.
2. The “if clause” can come after the main clause. If so, no comma is needed.

Example:

We would study if you came.

3. “Were” can be used in place of “was” after I / he / she / it. There is no difference in meaning, but “were” is more formal. However, “were” is preferable in purely imaginary situations.

Examples:

If I were a rich man, I could buy a new car.

If I were you, I wouldn't go there.

F. Language Function
